PROMISING MINES EAST OF OGDEN

A special correspondent of the Tribune, writing from Morgan, says:

Commencing at a point seven miles north on Cottonwood creek, Durst canyon, coming in from the south, is the first point of interest to the mineral hunter. At this point, where the canyon road intersects the Cottonwood road, you find the remains of an old silver-lead reduction plant, built at a time when silver was the metal mainly searched for. From this viewpoint the old ore dumps and excavations are plainly seen. Nearly more recently built ore bins jut the roadside, from which over 100 carloads of ore have been shipped to the Murray and other smelters, having the enviable value record of $200 and upward per ton.

Following up the creek road about a mile and a half further, the E. P. Hardey ranch is reached, at the lower end of which the Miller canon is made attractive by its carbonate colored dumps showing up from both east and west sides. Just above the ranch, Arbutus creek joins the Cottonwood from the south. Here, and along the flow of the creek, a reasonably good road has been made up the canyon to the Croft boarding house, where it comes to an abrupt end, on account of the mountain steep. It was from this point where our investigation, on foot, commenced.

The Croft group of fourteen claims, seven of which are patented, is located upon the main zone, the trend being north and south, with granite and quartzite dykes for retaining walls, laced with carboniferous lime. These walls stand perpendicular, prominent and well defined, so much so that they are traceable for miles. The break in the ridges and variation of mountain spurs seem to have but little effect upon the straight course of the quartzite, granite and lime walls, which, as they pass from slope to slope, protrude above the surface for many feet in height and, to the military mind, present the appearance of a long and unending line of battle.

Between these walls, immense bodies of solid and decomposed limestone occur where a uniform condition of soft and hard carbonate of lead is discovered, streaked with veins of steel galena and various shades of silver ore, i. e., gray carbonate, bromide and sulphide. Much work has been done upon this group in sinking shafts and driving tunnels, but unfortunately for the company, the direction of new work should be done has been under the dictation of owners of the California and eastern ends of the line, instead of permitting those in charge of the ground to use their judgment. This property should have been a dividend payer long ago and without a doubt, will be in the near future, with the new life now at its back.

Joining this property on the west and north are the Carbonate Hill and Carbonate Gem groups, from which great dumps of soft carbonate ore stream the mountain sides and stain the dry creek bed with metallic colors for over a mile distant from the works; the water from the snow of many winters having carried and deposited it along the route of the canyon. These two groups occupy pages of Utah's mineral history in past years, as they again will in the future. The Carbonate Hill group is now controlled by Col. Matt Dougherty of Salt Lake City and eastern associates, who are preparing a campaign of more vigorous work than ever before, and under the management of A. Van Patten of Ogden, the Carbonate Gem company is now at work clearing out the old workings preparatory to a resumption of ore shipments.

The Mountain Chief Mining company holds a most important position in the congress of groups here, having for its influence a greater part of the apex, with its exterior lines so compassed that the core of the main mineral belt passes directly through their grounds from the Carbonate Hill group on the south to the Hardey group on the north. Here an extraordinary showing has been made during the past year, not only in uncovering bodies of galena ore, but a very high grade silver carbonate, sulphur and bromide. The work of last year at three different points on both the east and west sides of Miller gulch offers great encouragement in further penetrating the mountain through their tunnel, which, unlike many others, has its ore to work upon from the start, with practically no dead expenses confronting quick and easy shipment. Under the directorship of Mr. Heiner, this property will soon take its place in the mining lists.

Of the Hardey, Halverson and Troller groups another letter will have to be written. Many new claims have been made in this part of the district during the present summer by Park City, Ogden and Morgan people, which, when opened, will demand attention.

BREWERY MEN AT THE HERMITAGE

Brewers' Day was celebrated at the Hermitage in Ogden canyon yesterday by one of the largest crowds of the season. The day's program included athletic sports, boating, swimming, a wrestling match and a dance in the evening, all of which were thoroughly enjoyed by those present. "Becker's Best" flowed free for all who would indulge in the amber thirst-quencher that has made this section famous, the dispensary department being in charge of Carl Larson, Joseph Johnson and Arnold Jorgenson.

The dance was a huge success, splendid music being furnished by the Orpheum orchestra of six pieces. The feature of the evening was the prize waltz which was contested by the best dancers of the city. The prize was won by Mr. and Mrs. Lundahl.

The hand-pick wrestling match between "Young Hackenschmidt," champion of Holland and the Pacific coast, and Jack Drew, champion of England, resulted in a victory for Drew, in as much as "Young Hackenschmidt" failed to secure two falls within the hour as prescribed in the terms of the match.

"Hack" secured the first fall in 25 minutes, by a scissors hold on the neck. The last lap of the match lasted 17 minutes by the announcement of the dance which probably prevented ed the Hollander from securing another fall.

"Hack" lost nearly twenty pounds heavier than his opponent and displayed foot work that was marvelous, nothing of the kind having ever been witnessed in this section. His tactics appeared somewhat rough at times but the holds which he secured throughout the match were new to the local fans and caused much favorable comment. Drew was clever on the defensive but lacked the strength possessed by the Dutchman. M. B. Richardson refereed the match in a manner satisfactory to the spectators.

The executive committee was composed of Alonzo West, M. B. Richardson, E. H. Wright, George Dinsdale, William Larson and James Atchison.

DAMAGE CASE AGAINST TOPHAM

In the case of John Suzuki against Dora B. Topham, now pending in the district court, Judge J. A. Howell yesterday granted the motion made by the plaintiff to strike out of the original complaint certain paragraphs not essential to the main issue of the complaint. The defendant, who is suing for the recovery of $450, alleged to have been taken from him against his will by the Topham woman, while she was conducting a brothel in the "red light district" of Ogden.

In the original charge made by Suzuki he says: "The defendant and the prostitute and attendants, by false and alluring signs, exposures of their persons, promises and deceptive acts, inveigle and ensnare morally weak, ignorant and unsuspecting men and women into the Fashion rooming house and Electric ally, where, by means of fraud, force and criminal acts, the said defendant and her agents, associates and employees, rob, cheat and defraud the ignorant and unsuspecting of their money and other things of value."

The foregoing paragraph will be stricken from the complaint and another, in which the plaintiff charges that the city officials permitted the women to engage in criminal violation of the law, will also receive the judicial blue pencil.

JOHN CORT IN OGDEN YESTERDAY

Mr. John Cort, the theatrical manager of Chicago, Portland, Seattle, Salt Lake and Ogden, whose name has loomed into national prominence lately on account of his having led the warfare against the theatrical syndicate, known as the trust, passed through Ogden yesterday afternoon. He paused only long enough to confer with Manager Allen at the Ogden, and to assure himself that everything was in readiness for the opening of the season there next week.

Mr. Cort, who has lost nothing of the breeziness of manner which proclaimed the real westerner, said to a reporter this morning, that he felt more than satisfied over the approaching season, and that he had every reason to feel satisfied with the condition of theatrical affairs, nationally, in which he was interested. Had his chain of houses remained in the hands of the trust, he said, he could not have looked for more than 17 to 20 first-class attractions for the coming season. By joining the Independents, he secured 52, most of the first grade, with 10 more in sight, so that 60 were assured for the Ogden coming season. The first class bill will be played at $1.50 rates. Stars like Sothern, Marlowe, Maxine Elliott, etc., would ask $2 per ticket, and the popular class, such as the house played last year, would still charge only $1.

"What was the real reason that Savage withdrew his attractions from the Syndicate," Mr. Cort was asked. "Simply because it would not allow him the privilege it does Mrs. Fiske of choosing where he would play. He insisted on his right to select trust houses where he chose, and Independent houses where he chose. They were included to give him this privilege, but other attractions whom they booked raised a roar, and they had to withdraw. The Savage attractions, therefore, are all with the Independents from now on."

"Assuming that Klaw & Erlanger, the heads of the trust, were willing, would the Independents allow traveling attractions to book trust houses in one city, and Shubert houses in another?"

"Certainly," was the response. "That is the meaning of the open door policy. The time is bound to come when traveling attractions will have the right to say where they want to play, trust or no trust. One may prefer Mr. Pyper's house in Salt Lake and mine in Ogden. Another may prefer the Colonial in Salt Lake, and the trust house in Ogden. They should all have the right to go where they please. The end of the trust movement is in sight, and it will only be a short time before the open door policy prevails everywhere."

Asked what he thought of the announcements made by Klaw & Erlanger to the effect that they would build houses in opposition to him in Portland and Seattle, Mr. Cort merely laughed and said that Klaw & Erlanger were not in the habit of putting their good money into losing ventures and he had no fear whatever that they would be able to induce local capitalists to erect opposition houses. This, he said, was only a part of the game of bluff.

CALL FOR GOOD ROADS MEETING

The Board of Control of the first annual convention of the Intermountain Good Roads Association, of which J. A. Howell is chairman, has issued the following official call:

The call, At a meeting of the Utah Good Roads Association, with representatives from Idaho and Wyoming, and held at Salt Lake City, January 26, 27, 28, 1910, it was resolved to form an Intermountain Good Roads Association, fixing the place of meeting at Ogden, Utah, for 1910, and Pocatello, Idaho, for 1911. The place of meeting for the year 1912 to be fixed at the meeting held at Ogden.

It was also resolved to invite all states and territories between the Pacific Coast and the eastern line of the Rocky mountains to participate in and unite with the association.

Practical Demonstrations. In conformity with these resolutions, the first annual meeting of the Intermountain Good Roads Association will be held at Ogden, September 23 to 26, 1910, at the same time as the Intermountain Four-State Fair and the International Sheep Show, it being the opinion of the officers of the association that at a time when the resources and industries of this section of the country are being exhibited, enthusiasm for the good roads movement can be aroused to the highest pitch, for all must agree that these resources and industries cannot be developed to the fullest extent without better public highways.

In addition to the meeting of the association, there will be a practical demonstration of the building of good roads, under the direction of the Board of County Commissioners of Weber county and the office of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, and an exhibition of macadamizing and paving streets under the direction of the mayor and city council of Ogden. It is contemplated in addition to set aside one day as automobile day, on which there will be a parade, and it is planned to have the largest assemblage of automobiles and automobile owners ever held in the Intermountain country.

Prominent Men to Be Present. The governors of all the western states have been invited to participate in and address meetings, and it is hoped that Hon. L. W. Page, director of the office of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, will be present to give the delegates the benefit of his great learning and wide experience upon the subject of public roads.

It is conceded that nothing so regards the material progress and social well being of the people of the western states as does the lack of proper facilities for transportation on our public highways, and therefore the devising of ways and means for the improvement of our roads and streets is of transcendent importance to every farmer, merchant, professional and business man in this section. As you are well aware, it is impossible for the western states to be adequately represented at any eastern Good Roads Congress, but it is not only possible, but vitally necessary that full delegates be sent to the first annual convention at Ogden this year, to that which will be held in Portland, Oregon, next year, and some other city of the western section the following year.

Appointment of Delegates. The respective governors of the states of Utah, Wyoming, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Montana, Nevada, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico are entitled to appoint twenty delegates; Commissioners of each county in said states, five; mayors of incorporated cities or villages, five; each automobile club, five; each good roads district or association, five; and each member of Commerce or Commercial Union, five.

You are urged at your earliest convenience to select that number of delegates to which your office entitles you, which is five, certifying your action on the enclosed blank and forwarding the same to J. A. Howell, chairman of the board of control, Ogden, Utah, so that programs and other literature may be forwarded to prospective delegates from time to time.

Very respectfully,

E. R. SHERMAN, President.

A. KENDALL, Secretary.

J. A. HOWELL, Chairman Board of Control, Ogden.

OGDEN, UTAH, A SHEEP MARKET

Ogden, the "Queen City of the Mountains," is justly proud of her enviable position as a sheep center, holding as they do the key to communion between the ranchers, breeders and market centers. Not being satisfied with the Big Sheep Show held here last year, which is without parallel, they now come forth with the proposition to give a BIGGER, GRANDER and BETTER one this fall. They have secured the International Sheep Show and Auction Sale to be given in connection with the Four-State Fair. They propose to bring the Breeder and the Buyer together on equal grounds for the purpose of mutual protection in the buying and selling of sheep. As an illustration, something like 150,000 head of rams alone are bought and sold in the territory contiguous to Ogden.

BARLOW SAYS NO GAMBLING IN ZION

"There is no gambling going on in Salt Lake City," declared Chief of Police Barlow, who was in Ogden yesterday afternoon. "If there is, it is not within the knowledge of the department. If there is, it shall be stopped."

"I see that the Betterment league took the initiative in the matter in Ogden Thursday night, closing several places. No action of the kind could be taken in Salt Lake because there is no necessity of it."

"But I want to say that Salt Lake City shall not be made the residence of the class of people who pursue such business. If the people of Ogden, or any other place, who have been stopped in their line of work drift to Salt Lake they shall be stopped, for we will not put up with it."

"I do not know of any gambling joints in Salt Lake City. In fact I know of nothing in that line or what might be termed gambling."

SURE THING MEN GET A VICTIM

A pair of clever "sure thing" men worked an unsuspecting youth yesterday to the amount of $30. John Mallard from the western part of the state is the mourning one and the strangers have disappeared leaving only a good description of their appearance for the police to work on.

Mallard arrived in town yesterday looking for work. He was approached on Twenty-third street by a stranger, who said that he was looking for men to work in his hay field. Mallard scented a job and asked for it. The stranger appeared satisfied with Mallard's appearance, but stated that he was unfortunately short of money owing to his having nothing but some checks at the time which he was unable to get cashed at the time.

At this moment a third man appeared and after asking for work, was accepted as Mallard had been. The "farmer" was still troubled by his shortage of money with which to buy horses for his hay field, which he claimed to have in a stable nearby. The second stranger offered him $15, saying that he could repay the sum when they reached the ranch. Not to be outdone in generosity by a stranger, Mallard then offered his $30 bill to help out his afflicted employer, who pocketed the money forthwith and stepped down the alley for a moment to negotiate the "purchase of feed for his horses."

He did not return and the second "hired one" went in search of him, leaving Mallard to hold down the pavement. The latter finally slipped to the black had been played on him and reported the matter to the police. He later secured work in Idaho.

AUTO BREAKS TELEGRAPH POLE

A serious automobile accident was narrowly averted last evening when a large touring car came down the Twenty-third street hill and crossing the street into Washington avenue, crashed into a big telegraph guypost with sufficient force to break the latter across at the surface of the ground.

Strange to relate the machine was not seriously damaged and was able to proceed, one of the lamps being badly twisted and other portions of the front part of the machine being somewhat damaged. The occupants were uninjured, with the exception of a shaking-up and a bad scare.

The post was one placed slantingly in the ground and anchored as a guy post to a telegraph pole close by. The chauffeur in clearing the taller pole did not perceive the smaller post adjacent and was unable to stop the car, joining until too late to stop the car.

CLEARY CHALLENGES YOUNG HACKENSCHMIDT

James Cleary, the clever Ogden mat artist, challenges Young Hackenschmidt for a wrestling match. "Hack" who claims the championship of Holland, won from Jack Drew at Lagoon last Wednesday and has attracted much favorable comment from local wrestling fans. Drew claims to be the champion of England.

Cleary is confident that he can handle the Dutchman and is willing that the winner take the entire purse. He will also agree to a side bet and bars no holds except the "strangle."

Cleary said last evening that in his opinion "Hack" is not in Mike Yokel's class at all and he expects that the latter will have little difficulty in winning the match.
